

COAST BANKSIA WOODLAND PROJECT

Indigenous Plants #3

View of Coastal Saltmarsh from the Roy Henderson Trail

Coastal Saltmarsh

The Coast Banksia Woodland site within the Waratah Bay-Shallow Inlet Coastal Reserve is surrounded by coastal saltmarsh. During high tides, salt water inundates areas within the project site and flows over the Roy Henderson trail. Coastal Saltmarsh comprises a series of zones, each with distinct plants. These defined areas of plant communities can be seen when walking along the trail and on the Inlet itself.

This indigenous plant information sheet identifies and illustrates coastal saltmarsh plants, both within the project area, and in the surrounding coastal saltmarsh. This sheet has been developed for a summer educational activity. It can be used in conjunction with Indigenous Plants sheets # 1 and # 2 which illustrate typical plants both large and small, found within the project site.

Access all CBWP plant guides at www.sandypoint.vic.au/coast-banksia-woodland-project

1 Coast Saltbush
Atriplex cinerea

2 Austral Seablite
Suaeda australis

3 Karkalla
Carpobrotus rossii

4 Beaded Glasswort / Samphire
Sarcocornia quinqueflora

5 Rounded Noon-flower
Disphyma crassifolium

6 Sea Celery
Apium prostratum

Coast Banksia Woodlands Project : Indigenous Plants #3

7 Yellow Sea-lavender
Limonium australe

8 Thick-headed Glasswort
Sarcocornia blackiana

9 Shrubby Glasswort
Tecticornia arbuscula

10 Creeping Brookweed
Samolus repens

11 Southern Sea-heath
Frankenia pauciflora

12 Australian Salt-grass
Distichlis distichophylla

13 Salt Pratia
Lobelia irrigua

14 Grass Daisy
Brachyscome graminea

15 Streaked Arrow-grass
Triglochin striata

16 Sea Rush
Juncus kraussii

17 Shiny Swamp-mat
Selliera radicans

The information for this CBWP Indigenous Plants sheet has been collected by volunteers and may need to be updated as new information becomes available.

Last updated:
November, 2023

COAST BANKSIA WOODLAND PROJECT

www.sandypoint.vic.au/coast-banksia-woodland-project

