

ALMOST THERE

Sandy Point is almost back to its usual quiet self. It won't be until after the Australia Day weekend when the schools go back, that we can finally claim our town back and return to normal.

However, don't get me wrong, we welcome our visitors, the town would not survive without them and where would we be if we lost our General Store and Café? Well, we will eventually have our Café up and running, the renovations just turned out to be much bigger than they bargained for. Every time they started one project it revealed another that needed doing and as they are determined to do things right the first time even if it means missing out on cashing in with the holiday crowds.

But some people just love Sandy Point so much that even after experiencing the luxury of being waited on at our B & B, recent guests, finding they had a few days free, decided to camp at the Caravan Park where they definitely won't be waited on.

Not only did they come to visit us, together with their young whippet who also stayed with us, but they very kindly gave us a 'Thank-you' gift of special handmade chocolate with a photo which they took when they stayed here.

But never fear, it will all be happening again next year. Who could not but love our little piece of paradise here at Sandy Point!

From Your Snippet Collector – Sally Gibson