

BITS AND PIECES OF THE FESTIVE SEASON

Firstly, in case you haven't heard, there is a Community BBQ on this Wednesday. Millie and Steve Coad are the instigators and it will kick off at 5.30pm at the BBQs by the Centre, with everything BYO. So, if you want a drink don't forget to bring both it and a glass. Also, if your fancy is sausages or steak or even a burger, bring them along together with any onions, bread or buns you might require.

Then following on close behind the BBQ, on Friday evening, December 21st, the Music Club will be presenting their Carols Concert at the Centre, which will again feature Greg Champion with his own special brand of humour. No doubt Santa will also pay a visit dressed in a fitting style!! So, bring along your drinks and nibbles and be prepared to join in with singing along with the carols.

I think mention needs to be made of the fantastic slide show put on by Ted Grambeau last Friday night. It was great to see such a good turn out which required extra chairs to be put out. There was probably around 75 people there to enjoy the evening. Ted not only operated the projector but also gave a running commentary, encouraging people to call out any questions they had. All the slides Ted showed were amazing. How he was able to get some of the shots I do not know, not only was he in the right place at the right time, but he must have put himself in in great danger to capture some of them.

Now for an item of news, which while not really Christmassy is very important. The cabinet for the defibrillator has been installed and the defibrillator will be operational by Christmas, if not before. At the moment it is with Phil Cornwall who has the task of configuring it. This mainly consists of installing all the contacts that will be needed as well as setting up the sim card. Obviously, we hope the defib. is not needed but it's great to have it there just, in case.
