

LET THERE BE MUSIC

It has always seemed a shame that the great acoustics of the Sandy Point Community Centre have not been able to be used to, to date, to their best advantage. This was why the Committee of Management have been fundraising for the past year to get an audio system installed worthy of such a wonderful space.

Now it has all come together and thanks to the expertise of Brett van Hoorn, The Centre now boasts a magnificent sound system. The wedding party who used The Centre for their reception over the Cup Weekend were the first to use it. They were able to plug in their iPod and play all their own selected music and they reported that the sound was great.

Most likely, the next event to reap the benefits of our new system will be Carols @ The Centre. This year, Megan Basset is in charge of the event which will be happening on Thursday 22nd December, starting at 6pm. With Megan's musical talents and the new sound system it will be an event to remember so don't forget the date and bring all the kids along to meet Santa.

As you know, Sandy Point comes alive over January with many events scheduled to entertain our visitors. All these will shortly appear on the Events Board outside the toilet block opposite the shops including something new which will be a great test for the sound system.

A group of local musicians have approached the Committee with an idea to hire the Centre and invite musical entertainers along to provide live music. They have booked Saturday 14th January for their first event which will feature Greg Champion. People will be invited to make up tables and bring along their own drinks and snacks with even fish and chips or pizza being quite acceptable.

The group has plenty of other ideas regarding musicians and also comedians who they want to invite to other events so keep your eyes open for their publicity and get in quick, as tickets numbers will be limited due to space.

From Your Snippet Collector – Sally Gibson