

MORE OF THE SAME OLD SAME OLD

It comes to something when we start to complain about anything, no matter how small or insignificant and really, we in Sandy Point have got it fairly easy, at least we are not in lock-down – yet! However, according to my daughter, who quotes a particularly good source, that could be happening sooner rather than later.

But in the meantime, we will carry on as usual and continue to complain! Has anyone noticed that there is a new viewing platform being built off the boardwalk near the surf-club? According to Andy it is bigger than Ned Neale's, but he is loath to actual put a finishing date on it.

Please do not forget that next Saturday 25th July at 10.30am, there is a meeting in the Centre to try to get ideas and discuss a suitable theme for Sandy Point. The plan is to have an information board on the grass opposite the shops. This will feature the flora and fauna that can be seen around the township. This board will also incorporate an Events Board, which will feature all the things that usually happen over the summer season. It is hoped to give the sign and map as you come into Sandy Point a face lift and update it. But this could be problematical this year and will all depend on how well the Covid 19 virus is contained, which is definitely not happening at the moment! So please come along to the meeting and share your ideas. If you can't make the meeting then email your ideas to info@sandypointcc.org.au

Interpretive Signs will, hopefully, be placed around the township where it is safe to do so and with Council approval. Some of the places, such as Ned Neale's Lookout which as locals all know is where Ned Neale placed his Mum to keep watch, while he assembled his stolen cows on the beach below. Another place could possibly be the site of the original Sandy Point School in Ash Avenue. Other sites are still to be decided but it surprising how much history there is around in Sandy Point.

Here is a question which could lead to plenty of discussion. If you are driving a car and come across four pedestrians spread right across the road, who has right of way? We have a shared roadway operating in Sandy Point so should the pedestrians move over and allow the car to pass, or should the car wait patiently behind them?
