

THEY ARE POPPING UP EVERYWHERE

It would seem that there is a plague of Street Libraries occurring. The latest one has appeared outside our place. It is actually on a pole which mainly lies on our neighbour's property. So naturally, we asked if he was OK with us doing this. It turned out that he was all for it and could not wait for it to be built.

We asked the builder of the original Street Library in Ash Avenue, John Stanecki to design and build it for us. Originally, John said it would have to join the queue behind all the other projects he had on hand. But before we knew it, our Street Library had been installed and stocked with books! You will find our library opposite the Fire Station. Hardly a week had gone by since we had asked him!

There is also a rumour that another resident in Ash Avenue is hoping to open a plant, fruit, and veggie stall just down the road from the Stanecki's residence. That would be a great asset to the community as anyone with excess fruit or vegetables would be able to add them to whatever was already on offer as well as any extra plants, they might have that are not required.

I know that the Men's Shed seems to be taking forever, but things are gradually getting done. A working bee was recently called to clear up the extra timber left over from the new viewing platform just off the path that comes up from the track that starts opposite the shops. A total of twelve fellas turned up to help and had everything ship-shape in no time. Considering there is a total of twenty financial members at the moment that was not a bad turn up.

Talking to the owners of the Café the other day it seems that they are planning to open shortly. That would definitely be a shot in the arm for the economy of Sandy Point. Naturally, this will all depend on how the Covid situation pans out.

Just a quick reminder about the next Signage Theme meeting. This will take place on Saturday 15th August at 10am, starting at the reserve opposite the shops to discuss the best location of the information board, then back to the Centre for further discussions about the project.
